MANY CHANGES IN SENATORS' LISTS

TERMS OF SEVERAL LEADERS IN WASHINGTON CIRCLES TO END.

NEW MEN MAY BE CHOSEN

Some Will Have Hard Fights to Retain Their Seats at Coming Campaigns.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Washington, D. C., June 21.—The new and old senators will be chosen in many states. The terms of thirty members of the senate will expire on that date, and among them are some of the most influential members of that body, on the democratic side as well as on the republican.

Ohio and Indiana promise to furnish the liveliest fights and added interest will be given to the contest in the Buckeye state by ex-senator Foraker's decision to enter the lists against Senator Decker, who will be a candidate for reelection. Senator Beveridge, of Indiana, is believed to have a big contest on his hands to secure reelection. Former Senator Heyburn is known to entertain a strong desire for Beveridge's seat and there is also a possibility that former Vice-President Fairbanks may get into the contest.

Not the least interesting of the senatorial contests that will be settled before March 3, 1911, will take place in Connecticut. Things political in that state are already being framed with a view to sending Senator Morgan G. Bulkeley down to defeat. Senator Bulkeley has been the republican leader of Connecticut for many years, but within the past few years a strong revolt has been organized to bring about his downfall. The anti-machine republicans have been gaining strength and the Senator undoubtedly will have a hard fight to return to Washington.

Senator Hale of Maine, the "father of the senate," will be returned. He has some opposition, but this is expected to fade away before the time comes for the election. The same may be said of Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island, who will finish thirty-one years of incessant service in the senate. Aldrich's present term expires in 1911, and who undoubtedly will be sent back for another six years.

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts may find his reelection more difficult than his colleagues of Maine and Rhode Island. Until several months ago it looked as though he would have smooth sailing, but Representative Butler Ames has been going over the state with a fine tooth comb in an effort to green mouth for the legislature, who will pledge themselves to vote against Lodge.

Senator Depew of New York will not be returned to the senate. It is doubtful even if he will consent to be a candidate for reelection. New York already is speculating on the question of his successor. The name of Mr. Roosevelt has been frequently mentioned in connection with the senatorship, but those who stand closest to the ex-president are of the opinion that he will not engage in a fight for the honor. Former Governor Frank B. Black, Hon. Joseph H. Choate, Timothy Woodruff and several others have been mentioned.

Other republican senators whose terms will expire in 1911 are Clark of Wyoming, La Follette of Wisconsin, Scott of West Virginia, Piles of Washington, Page of Vermont, Sutherland of Utah, Oliver of Pennsylvania, McLean of New Jersey, Nixon of Nevada, Burton of Nebraska, Carter of Montana, Warner of Missouri, Chapp of Minnesota, Burrows of Michigan, and Flint of California.

On the democratic side the senators whose terms will expire on March 3, 1911, are Daniel of Virginia, who is assured of reelection without opposition; Money of Mississippi, who will be succeeded by John Sharp Williams; Culberson of Texas, who probably will be re-elected; Frazier of Tennessee; Tallaferra of Florida; and Bayner of Maryland.

PURSE CONTAINING $30 FOUND BY ROBERT CODY

And Miss Mary Urban, a Servant Girl, Was Made Happy Yesterday Afternoon.

Miss Mary Urban, a servant girl employed at W. G. Wieseler's home, and two companions visited the police station in deep distress about half past four o'clock yesterday afternoon. It appeared that they had been sitting on the Methodist church steps for a few minutes and had afterwards walked to Baker's drug store where Miss Urban had suddenly discovered that her purse containing $30 and some change was missing. Chief Appleby asked her if anyone whom she could name or describe had passed by that way about the time they left the church and Miss Urban said that Robert Cody, freight agent at the Union Pacific station, and a Mr. Delaney were the only ones they could remember. Mr. Cody, upon being communicated with over the telephone, said that he had found the pocketbook and would be pleased to return it to the owner. Needless to say, there was general thanksgiving on the part of all concerned in the little episode.

WRIGHT AEROPLANE TRIALS THIS WEEK

Tests Drought to an End Last September by Accident Will Be Completed.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Washington, D. C., June 21.—The official trials of the Wright aeroplane, which were brought to an abrupt end last September by the accident in which Lieut. Selfridge of the Signal Corps was killed, will be resumed this week. Arrangements to this end have been practically completed.

It is probable that both of the Wright brothers will engage in the tests. Under the government specifications, the aeroplane must carry two persons having a combined weight of about 350 pounds, and sufficient fuel for a trip of 125 miles. Everyone interested in aeronautics awaits eagerly the distance test, which will be the first of its kind undertaken by the Wrights. They will be required to make a flight in a straight line not less than five miles in length. One way they must go with the wind and on the other they must fly against the wind. The flight will be made over a prescribed course, from Fort Myer to Alexandria. The aeroplane must have a speed of at least 40 miles in still air, but will be accepted with a speed of 26 miles an hour.

Neither of the Wrights has ever succeeded in maintaining a uniform speed of 36 miles an hour in flight. Each a speed, in fact, never has been made on any kind of an aeroplane on any sustained flight. If it is possible to make a flight of this kind at the required speed, the fact would be demonstrated to the satisfaction of all military experts that the aeroplane would be a valuable adjunct in warfare.

CONFEDERATE DEAD ARE TO BE HONORED

Memorial to Men Who Died in Fort Delaware Will Be Erected at Fann National Cemetery.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Washington, D. C., June 21.—Bills were opened today by Col. William C. Oates, commissioner for marking the graves of Confederate soldiers, for the proposed monument to be erected by the United States government in the Confederate section of Fann's Point National Cemetery at Salem, N. J., to mark the resting place of nearly 2,500 officers and men of the Confederate army and navy who died as prisoners of war at Fort Delaware between 1862 and 1865. The monument is to be of granite and the estimated cost is $8,500. Owing to the imperfect records it was found impossible to place distinctive head stones at each individual grave, and the idea of one large monument in memory of the dead was therefore adopted.

WEATHER MEN MEET TODAY IN ENGLAND

Will Not Fix up Any Bad Weather but Discuss Interchange of Weather Reports.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] London, June 21.—Every civilized nation of the world is represented by one or more weather experts at the International Conference of Meteorologists which opened here today. This conference is the outgrowth of a similar gathering of meteorologists from all parts of the world which was held a few years ago and promises to be of unusual importance in extending the scope of scientific weather observations and facilitating the distribution of weather reports and storm warnings on land and sea over the entire surface of the earth.

One of the principal problems to be taken up by the conference during its session of one week is the question of bringing about an international agreement as to the taking and recording of weather observations. The committee in charge of the subject favors a scheme to obtain the adoption by all the leading nations of a uniform method of taking and transmitting weather meteorological observations so that each observation no matter by what nation taken, will be comparable with the observations taken by any other nation. There is now no uniform system of making such observations and of transmitting them, with the result that it is impossible of comparing the reports as the same features and conditions are not observed and recorded in every case.

The report of the committee, which consists of Dr. W. N. Shaw, Great Britain; Prof. A. Angot, France; Dr. L. Prue, China; Hon. Admiral H. G. G. Germany; Prof. H. H. Japan; Prof. W. L. Moore, United States; and Dr. Nakamura, Japan, will be thoroughly discussed and it is hoped that a definite plan will be evolved which will be submitted for sanction to the various governments.

Another committee, consisting of Messrs. Angot, H. G. Moore and Lieut. Gen. Rykachev, of the Central Physical Observatory of St. Petersburg, Russia, will submit a plan for the establishment of a uniform system of storm and general weather signals by all nations. It is hoped that by the adoption of this plan the confusion arising from the different signals used by the different nations will be eliminated and it will be made possible to issue more accurate weather warnings displayed on land or flashed by wireless to ships on the ocean more intelligible and, therefore, more valuable for the protection of life and property upon the high seas.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Monte Ne, Ark., June 21.—Delegates from every part of the south are gathered here for the third annual meeting of the National Cotton Congress. There will be papers, addresses and discussions dealing with a wide range of subjects of interest to the planters, growers, spinners and manufacturers of cotton and cotton products.

An informal session was held today for the welcome of the visitors and the arrangement of the program for the subsequent sessions of the congress. NARROWLY ESCAPED A SERIOUS INJURY

Mrs. F. B. Granger's Horse Ran Away Throwing Occupants to the Ground.

Mrs. F. B. Granger and two small daughters, while driving on the Leyden road about half a mile from the cemetery yesterday afternoon, narrowly escaped serious injury when the horse became frightened and ran away. The older daughter, who was driving at the time, in trying to turn the buggy so that her small sister might see two hand organ men who were passing at the time with their monkeys, cramped the buggy too close, and the horse started to run away, throwing the occupants to the ground. Mrs. Granger managed to stop the horse before he ran far but was badly bruised and cut about the head, while the buggy was almost a total wreck. Mr. T. E. Bennison, who happened to be present, took Mrs. Granger and her daughters to their home on Terrace street.

NEW GAME LAWS ARE WORTH INSPECTION

Non-Resident Fishermen Must Pay One Dollar For the Privilege—Rock River and Koshkonong Open Waters.

Fishermen and summer resorters from outside states would do well to read over the new fish and game laws. Under the new law a non-resident of the state must pay the sum of one dollar for the privilege of sitting out in the sun and blistering his nose in an attempt to catch a mess of fish. Anyone over sixteen years of age will have to have a permit. These permits can be obtained from any deputy game warden or from the state game warden's office on payment of one dollar. Deputy Drafahl says that as soon as possible he means to leave a few permits in County Clerk Leach's office in case they should be wanted and also come at the summer resorts, where they will be handy. The law is effective now. Another change in the fish laws makes the waters of Rock River and Lake Koshkonong open waters for the year round for fishermen with hook and line except for bass which are unconditionally protected until June 1st. Another new feature is relative to carp fishing which must be done between sunrise and sunset.

IRWIN MAY GET A PRISON SENTENCE

Man Who Was Allowed to Come Back to City on Probation Started Fight in Saloon Saturday Night.

James Irwin, who was arrested about two years ago on a criminal charge but subsequently allowed to go on condition that he should leave Janesville and not return for five years, appeared in municipal court this morning and will probably receive a sentence tomorrow morning on a charge of larceny of the person of a woman. Irwin was allowed to come back here some weeks ago with the understanding that he should be punished for the old offense if, at any time, his behavior should not be above reproach. A few days after his return he was arrested and held in court for drunkenness. The court gave him one more chance. Saturday night he started a fight in the Silver Moon saloon and resisted Officer Sam Brown when the latter was taking him across the Milwaukee street bridge on the way to the city lockup. His attorney, William Dougherty, this morning asked for a continuance of the case until tomorrow morning.

James Lowry pleaded guilty to drunkenness but was unable to pay a fine and costs of $1.10. Sentence was suspended on condition that he get out of town and stay out. Charles Davis paid a fine and costs amounting to $4.20 for a similar offense.

BEATITUDES THERULES OF LIFE

STRONG SERMON BY REV.

LAUGHLIN AT PRESBYTE-

RIAN CHURCH.

THEY ARE THE PRECEPTS

Which If Followed Will Enable Us to

Live Life Most Satisfactorily to Ourselves and Others.

"Life's Adjustments" was the subject of yesterday morning's sermon at the Presbyterian church by Rev.

J. W. Laughlin. The text of the sermon was taken from the fifth chapter of Matthew, the first five of the Beatitudes contained in that chapter.

"The Beatitudes," said Rev. Laughlin, "are the principles upon which

Jesus expected to found his kingdom.

"In Jesus' time, the conception of the Romans, who then ruled Palestine, was that a kingdom was a union for the purpose of war and conquest. Jesus' idea of the more remarkable when compared with this conception of an empire. He said,

"My Kingdom shall be established in peace."

"Among the Hebrew people of that time, there was a system of graduation. The man in office bore it over the man out of office. The Lord said,

"It shall not be in my Kingdom. He who would be greatest shall serve."

"There was a new order of things,"

said a new order of things.

"One Lord tried to bring about a state of conditions that would eliminate strife and where men would be one with another.

"One of the most difficult things that we have to do is to prevent ourselves from separating our religion from our life. We unconsciously carry two compartments, one where we place our religion, and the other in which we keep our daily life." We allow ourselves to think many times that a man may go to church and perform the duties of a churchman

and then after church and during the week do things that are entirely different from those precepts and principles for which the church is supposed to stand.

"We divide our lives into two worlds. We have an inside world and an outside world. The outside world is concerned with our business duties—our dealings with other men.

The inside world is that in which the Spirit lives. We unconsciously carry two compartments—one for religion and one for life. This is the wrong way. Life should be a unit. You cannot separate life from religion, or life becomes irreligious.

"We know of the outside of both the inside and the outside world and realized that the inside world was no more real than the material world.

One is just as real as the other. To say the world about us is not real because it is not eternal is merely a theory idle and vain. Jesus made the effort constantly to adjust life so as to live the largest life for himself and for those about him. In the world Jesus had in mind, the good should do that which was bad.

"The virtues of life are mental things. How shall we adjust ourselves so as to make the most out of life? Shall we deny that there is anything wrong with the world? Do because God is good, shall we say all is right with the world? God is all in the heavens and the world, but all is not right. There are unrighteous today who are in suffering and sin. It reflects upon the common intelligence to say that all is well with the world.

The efforts of the long-suffering for love, joy, peace and kindness and the effect was a readjustment of conditions. We may not secure those but the trouble with us is that we do not give Christ's program a sufficient trial.

"Take love for instance. Do you know what love is? You say you love your father and your mother and your country. Who knows what it is to have their being entirely filled with a feeling of kindness toward the whole world?

"Now there is joy. What do you know about joy? There is the relluc-lent, jolly fun and merriment. But to have the ecstasy such as Jesus Christ can give a man; to know how the soul may have it to know what joy is,

delight, that is peace and patience and humbleness. These few virtues suggest a world of things which go to make up the complete life. When the soul gets these there comes a world of changes that put it in the right place.

"Jesus Christ has the only practical solution for things as we see them to be. He did not come to give a new creed or religion to the world, but to give life.

"Now, are we the sons of God? If we are, then we shall be like him. If

God is willing to bestow on us this spirit, why should we be begging for that which is so freely bestowed on us? We need not fly away for a new system of ethics. The fruit of the spirit which God will give is peace, joy, and all these other things.

"God has left many promises for his followers and that spirit in which these promises are given will enable you to live the life that is most satisfactory to yourselves and to those about you."

Mrs. Victoria Potter spent the afternoon in Edgerton Saturday.

TONIGHT WILL BE AVERY SHORT NIGHT

It Follows the Longest Day in the

Year and Also the First Day of Official Summer.

Today is the first day of what is officially known as summer. It is also the longest day in the year. The last gasp of spring was very summer like in its atmospheric conditions and it promises to be a warm summer. The moon last night, the new one between a hot day in prospect if the old signs do not fail, so summer is at last here.

One of the most remarkable things about today will be the performance of mother earth tonight at 9 o'clock sharp, for at that time, unless something of cosmic importance happens to another earth, she will shift her position and for the briefest fraction of a second the sun will apparently stand still in the heavens.

Of course Janesville people who will not be able to see that, and those who will see the sun at that time will in all probability not be able to observe the fact. Anyway, at 9 o'clock tonight the summer solstices begin,

which means that the sun will start traveling southward in his course.

This is figurative language, for folks are taught nowadays that the sun

stands still all the time and the earth moves.

It will be a lonesome day for the owls and bats, and a very hard day for the fowls, who are notorious for

WALRATH CASE MAYNOT BE DETERMINED

Continuance Taken on Saturday Practically Relegated to the Junk

Heap of Dead Issues.

Owing to the fact that the notice of the motion to determine the summary questions involved had been previously served, Judge Grant found it impossible to proceed with the Margaret Walrath case on Saturday afternoon. The case was taken up in the court Saturday afternoon. Under the statutes any party to a writ appeal consideration to a hearing upon eight days' notice, after a return has been filed with the clerk of the court.

But in this instance the return was not filed until the 17th of the month.

Attorney J. J. Cunningham, representing Mrs. Walrath, consented to a hearing without further notice on June 28, or as soon thereafter as the motion could be taken up, but the term of the circuit court of Green county opens on that date and the term of the Union House bar, which the common council has sought to vacate, expires about the first of July. The whole proceeding, therefore, is likely to be a dead issue before the attorneys get to it again.

In the Woodruff vs. Woodruff, et al., mortgage foreclosure proceedings Mrs.

C. M. Woodruff, widow of one of the defendants, Judge John W. Hale, and

Attorney W. G. Wheeler filed cross bills to have their foreclosure acted upon in the same proceedings. After considerable testimony had been taken, the case was continued.

WISCONSIN WEATHER FORECAST:
Partly cloudy with showers and thunderstorms tonight or Tuesday; brisk southwest wind.
BUSINESS OFFICE OPEN SATURDAY EVENING.
TAXING INCOMES
“General business continues fairly satisfactory. Activity is somewhat spotty, some lines of business being relatively quiet, and the fact that summer months are gradually approaching tends to moderate optimistic opinions in trade circles, although the volume of business is on a considerably better scale than a year ago,” says Henry Clews. “The tariff situation now attracts little attention, since it is felt that no seriously disturbing legislation can be expected in this quarter.
“The efforts of the national government to increase its revenue, while not an important market factor, excite more or less interest in financial circles. President Taft’s proposal to tax net profits does not, of course, meet with general approval.
“Such an inequitable tax would compel corporations to open their books to government officials in a manner that would often meet with serious objection. Inequitable methods would be necessary to prevent deception, thus necessitating many of the objections which belong to the income tax. The deficit for the current fiscal year may approximate about $100,000,000.
“This is less than was expected, and with a revival of business the losses in revenue are likely to diminish. The true policy for the government would be to curtail expenses, and not to further augment the burden of taxation under which the country is already complaining.
“If further revenue must be obtained, it could be more easily, more efficiently and more equitably accomplished by adoption of the stamp duties. These could be imposed upon business documents in a manner to raise quite sufficient revenue at least expense and without fear of evasion. Such a tax would not touch the poor or classes and would only be felt by the well-to-do.”
Mr. Clews expresses the sentiment of the business world, on the much discussed income tax, which is only popular with the legal luminaries in congress, backed by the larger constituency of men who have no incomes to tax.
This fallacy is college bred, and belongs to the impractical list of theories advanced by students of political economy. It has no place in the common-sense field of business, because it is socialistic in tendency and confiscatory in practice.
The stamp tax suggested will produce more money from the same sources, and permit the poor man to escape with the same facility.
AMERICAN EMBASSY ASSOCIATION
There has recently been organized in New York city an association for the purpose of creating sentiment in favor of providing suitable homes for our foreign ambassadors. The founders of this association are prominent bankers and businessmen who realize that congress is indifferent to the requirements of the situation, and that the nation is being humiliated through this indifference.
Clarence E. Jones, president of the association, said the other day:
“No American who has traveled to any extent outside of his own country has failed to be impressed with the difference between the way in which the United States provides for its ambassadors in foreign capitals and the method followed by other nations. We not only pay our diplomatic representatives miserly pittance, but expect them to provide out of this for an establishment which will do credit to our country.
“The result is that only wealthy men can afford to enter the diplomatic service. A case in point was the recent offer of the embassy to the court of St. James to Dr. Charles W. Elliot, the retiring president of Harvard University. No diplomatic appointment over not with such instant and widespread approval. But Dr. Elliot did not accept it, it is an open secret that his reason was the fact that he did not feel that his private income would enable him to support an establishment in London and to entertain upon a scale that has come to be associated with the London Embassy. Instances are numerous where men of brains have been turned away from our diplomatic service by the lack of emolument, and posts in some instances have had to be given to men whose only apparent qualification for a diplomatic position was that somebody left them with a lot of money.”
General Horace Porter, formerly Ambassador to France, in a recent article discussed to question from the standpoint of the man who has had experience. He pointed out that the salary of an Ambassador is only $17,500, a rate of pay which is the same as that of Minister of the first class, fixed by Congress many years ago, since which time the cost of living abroad has increased fifty per cent.
The Ambassador must devote the first few months to house hunting. He has no fund for entertaining, and General Porter estimates that he has to spend four times the amount of his salary. In the case of some of our ambassadors this estimate may be increased to ten or twenty times the salary. Continuing, he said:
“All other important countries own or lease their embassies in foreign capitals. For instance, the British government owns its embassy in Washington, and, besides, it pays its ambassador a sum several times as large as the American ambassador to Great Britain gets, and an allowance for entertaining besides. Then, too, the purchase of property in a foreign capital sometimes turns out a good investment. The British government purchased in 1815 a palace in Paris for $200,000, which today is worth more than ten times that sum. Gorse is the wealthiest and the most important country in the world, and yet it does the least of any great power to see that its dignity is maintained in other capitals.

“We shall have a strong organization, and we are going about this thing from patriotic motives but in a businesslike way. It is the intention to form a committee in every congressional district and carry on a systematic campaign. There will be no salaries paid. The first thing to do is to arouse public sentiment, and when that is done the rest ought to be easy.”
If the governor makes some radical changes in his board of control, he may be assured of the hearty endorsement of the legislature which legislation of the present aggregation out of office. He has nothing to fear, for a discredited board member drops out with a dull and sickening thud and not a ripple on the surface remains to tell the tale. The public service would be benefited by some less experienced antecedents.
Congress is top-heavy with legal talent. The tariff question has been found to be so largely local that it is a question of business pure and simple. It will never be properly adjusted until a commission of businessmen, independent of congress, go at it in a businesslike way, and give the problem intelligent attention. The people are interested just now in an early adjournment of the lawmakers.
Patrick Calhoun, the street-car magnate of San Francisco, won his first victory in the case for bribery, brought against him by Assistant District Attorney F. J. Haney, the man who unearthed so much corruption in the Golden Gate city. Calhoun is a hard man to read, but Haney is persistent and proposes to stay by the case.
With Peary at the North Pole and Wellman on the way, it is only a matter of time when the advantages of this breezy latitude will be fully exploited as a summer resort. There ought to be some compensation for exploring a region never intended for habitation. The ice crop, the only product, is too far from the market to interest even Mr. Kulekbocker.
The horrible murder of Miss Segal in the New York Chinese mission presents a new problem in missionary work. If 12 years of civilization turns out that sort of product the raw material must be bad. Those people need a better morality more than they need a passport into eternity.

Heart to Heart Talks.

A MODERN ROMANCE.

“All the world loves a lover”—and his story.

Here is one of the prettiest tales in the annals of romance, and it is a real love story too.

It is the romance of Arthur Fortesque, nephew of the Duke of Portland, and Olga Vorinoff, a Donkhorob maid of Canada.

Ten years ago Fortesque was a handsome, dashing graduate of Oxford. In his bones was the wanderlust. Instead of settling down he went away to Canada, seeking adventures.

In Quebec he heard much about those strange people, the Donkhorobs. The story of their queer religious beliefs, of persecution in Russia and of how they came to Canada—this appealed to Fortesque.

He determined to go on a visit to the community, study the people and write a book about them.

The book was never written. One day in his travels through the colony Fortesque came across a band of women dressed in strange attire. They were drawing a plow and chanting in a minor key as they toiled at the ropes. When they passed the young man his eyes rested for a moment on the sweet face of a girl in her team. The girl looked at him shyly, and he thought her face the most winsome he had ever seen.

The incident passed from his mind. Then one day in a little camp cabin far away the face of the girl flashed on his memory. He could not forget it. Impulsively he started back to find her. After a long search he succeeded. The young nobleman discovered that this girl, Olga Vorinoff, unaffected and simple, was surprisingly sweet and womanly. He could not rid himself of her charm.

And one day, after weeks of self examination and hesitancy, he took the little woman into his arms and kissed her.

Hearing of Fortesque's approaching marriage to Olga, his old friends tried to dissuade him. They told him his fancy for the maid would soon fade.

But the nobleman and the girl were married.

The news went back to England, and Fortesque was disinherited. Long before he had adopted the simple creed of the Donkhorobs and entered the communal life.

The young man by reason of his education became a leader among the plow people. He seems perfectly contented with the simple life and very much in love with his pretty wife.

And here ends the true tale of the romance of Arthur Fortesque, nobleman, and Olga Vorinoff, maid.

If you have lost a front tooth, I can slip in another one to match it perfectly. No plate in your mouth. I fasten the new tooth to your own remaining teeth by a delicate gold backing, out of sight and unobtrusive.

My prices are reasonable, too, which deserves some consideration on your part.

A party recently consulted me for an estimate as to the cost of certain work needed. He finally was persuaded to go to Chicago for the work.

A relative revealed to me the fact that the ultimate cost to him was three times what I asked him, besides he is in continual trouble and Chicago is a long way to go for relief.

OPPIE DILDOCK TALKS OF FOURTH

WRITER SENDS IN INTERESTING COMMUNICATION RELATIVE TO CELEBRATION.

MAKES A FEW SUGGESTIONS

Give the Visitors Plenty of Music, Plenty of Good Times, A Chance to Get a Drink of Water And They Will Enjoy Themselves.

To the Editor:

There is an old saying that "music hath charms" for the wildest beast. If the coming celebration of the Fourth of July is to be a success let the committee in charge of the music get plenty of bands. This is one of the essential features of any celebration—bands and band music. Let the bands understand they are to play all day and some of them all the evening. Have something doing in the music like every minute of the day. This is but a suggestion but I think that people generally agree with me. Have Plenty of Water.

Another suggestion to the committee in charge is that they make arrangements for plenty of water on the streets. With thousands of strangers in the city this is an essential feature of the day's enjoyment. Have the mains tapped at several places with cups attached so that water is readily, truly free. See that all the fountains are equipped with cups so that all may drink who wish to. The Court House park will doubtless be the scene of the picnic lunches and there should be an extra supply of cups there. Have the drinking fountain cleaned and all the drinking places running.

Retiring Room.

Another suggestion is that some vacant store be transferred into a retiring room for the women. That it be properly equipped for such a purpose is more than essential. A place where three mothers may take their babies away from the noise and disturbance for a half hour or so, and have some good women, in charge, and also an equipment for washing the dirt away. It would be appreciated by every woman who visits the city. The men can take care of themselves. There are plenty of places for them to go but the poor, tired women need some attention. Think this over, committee men, and then advertise the fact and see how much bigger the crowds are.

Good Officials.

In selecting your officials for the day have good men who are used to handling the crowds. Have men experienced and who do not get rattled when something goes wrong. These will be a great aid to the regular police and in no way conflict with them in the exercise of their duties. This is just a suggestion that comes from experience of past years when all has been confusion with no real help. Digger And Better.

Of course this year's celebration will be bigger and better than ever. I can see the place now saying that the procession will be two miles long and more elaborate than ever, but have plenty of bands, have a rest room for women, have plenty of drinking water and have good men in charge of the parades and handling the crowds. There are but suggestions, but are worth considering.

SOME SUGGESTIONS FOR CELEBRATIONS

While Janesville is Going to Celebrate This Year Words of Warning Are Not Out of Place.

Despite the fact that Janesville is going to celebrate on July Fourth a word of warning is not out of place. It would be well to make a few suggestions as to the care and treatment of wounds that may occur from careless handling of fireworks. Many boys and even some grown-ups each year have accidents and it is a bit of advice to those that the following suggestions are made.

Tetanus, or lockjaw, as it is commonly known, is caused by the lodgment of the tetanus germ in a wound, often a slight and quite unnoticed wound. The tetanus germ remains inactive so long as exposed to the air.

Fourth of July wounds, no matter how insignificant they may appear, should be attended to by physicians, who know best how to thoroughly cleanse them and apply the treatment necessary to prevent the growth and activity of the germ that causes lockjaw. All such wounds should be kept open to the air until dressed by the physician. Never seal a wound with court plaster, or a condition of similar dressings. As a preliminary washing, pouring the attention of the physician, the wound may be washed with peroxide of hydrogen.

That any doubt as to the necessity of having a physician attend to Fourth of July wounds may be removed we cite the following as the necessary treatment, even in cases of slight wounds:

1. Freely incise every wound.
2. Carefully and thoroughly remove from the wound every particle of foreign matter.
3. Cauterize the wound thoroughly with 25 per cent carbolic acid.
4. Apply loosely a wet pack of boracic acid.
5. Give a full dose of anti-tetanic serum.

A NEW 5c CIGAR.

The Janesville Cigar Co. have placed on the market a new 5c cigar. The new cigar is to be called Tyras. It has been thoroughly tried out and every assurance is given that it will run uniformly. It is a perfect shape, with a long clean filler (no scraps), covered with a choice Connecticut broad leaf wrapper. It is a choice smoke for the man who appreciates cigar quality.

Celebration Committee

The chairman of the various committees in charge of the work for the Fourth of July celebration are requested to meet Monday evening at eight o'clock at the office of the New Day Light Co. I. F. WORTENDYKE.

APPLICATIONS FOR SALOON LICENSES

Will Be Scrutinized by City Fathers Tonight—May Discuss a Screen Regulation.

Saloon licenses for 1909-10 expire at midnight on Monday, July 5, and the new ones will probably be granted at a meeting of the common council, tonight, however, the greater number of the applications will be presented, and carefully examined by the aldermen. It is alleged that the Hub Brewing Co. will not leave the Union House bar to Mrs. Walrath for another year and that there will be an entire change of management. If satisfied that such is the case, the City Fathers will probably grant a license to the new applicant for the right to retail liquors there.

It is said that the saloon screen ordinance now on the books is defective and cannot be enforced. Whether or not anything will be done tonight with regard to petitions relating to this subject which are in circulation, remains to be seen.

Mayor Carlo is expected to name the successor of the late Colla C. MacLean on the police board. The new appointee must be a democrat in politics. W. T. Shiner is one of those whose names are mentioned in the rumors.

EDWARD HEARNE HAS RELATIVES IN CITY

Driver of the Flat Car in Crown Point Races Married Miss Gertrude McKee a Year Ago.

Additional local interest in the result of the big auto races held at Crown Point, Indiana, last Saturday, is due to the fact that Edward H. Hearne, the young amateur automobilist who drove the Flat car in the long race, is married to Miss Gertrude McKee, a niece of Mrs. F. F. Stevens and a cousin of George McKee of this city. His wife, as Miss Gertrude McKee, two years ago. Mr. Hearne is a young man of independent means and went into the racing game for the fun of it. His car, a Fiat, he equipped and paid for all training expenses, costing in the neighborhood of twelve thousand dollars and finished fourth in the great struggle.

LONG TRIAL ENDS VERY QUIETLY

JURY IN MILLIONAIRE CALHOUN'S CASE UNABLE TO AGREE.

IN COURT FOR FIVE MONTHS

San Francisco Traction Magnate Disappointed That Jurors Failed to Acquit Him—Declares War on Honey and Wealthy Backers.

San Francisco, June 21.—The longest trial of a criminal case in the United States, that of Patrick Calhoun, the millionaire traction magnate charged with bribing a supervisor, which lasted five months and one week, probably will be done all over again, the jury having been discharged after failing to agree.

Not until each juror had pronounced as hopeless the prospect of a verdict was the order for their liberation made by Judge Lawlor, prosecution and defense giving assent to the discharge.

No Demonstration in Court.

The trial ended quietly and without demonstration. The courtroom was filled, but the sudden climax did not permit of an attendance gathered from far and near, such as characterized the five days of argument and the vigil of the preceding night.

But five ballots were taken, three of these shortly after the jury retired.
Upon the first vote the jury stood eight for acquittal and four for conviction. Two of the four joined the majority upon the second ballot, and one of the remaining two announced his determination to remain out a month if necessary.

Judge Lawlor announced that he had ascertained, before coming to court, that the jury appeared to be hopelessly divided. After ordering the discharge of the jury, Judge Lawlor drew his chair to the edge of the platform nearest the jury box and addressed to the 12 men some informal remarks, criticizing the laws and usages that made possible the expense of three months in the empaneling of a jury, and thanking them upon their worth as citizens. He declared the courts were utterly helpless to prevent such occurrences and recommended that the legislature be influenced by the people to change the laws that governed court procedure.

Will Be Tried Again.

The attorneys were expected to fix a date for another trial upon the same indictment at today's session of court.

"I am ready to try this case again,
and I will go ahead at once if necessary," said Francis J. Heney, special counsel in the case, an hour after the adjournment.

Mr. Calhoun said:

"Of course, I am disappointed at the failure of the jury to acquit me of the unjust charges against me. I should have liked my vindication by the jury to have been absolute. The judge was hostile, the assistant district attorney bribed and the administration of the criminal law of this state disgraced. I propose at the proper time and in a proper manner, to submit formal charges against Assistant District Attorney Francis J.
Heney for receiving bribes as a public officer and against Rudolph Sprockels and James D. Phelan, who financed the prosecution, for having paid them."

TALK OVER FUEL HANDLING.

Railway Men at Chicago Convention
Discuss Their Problems.

Chicago, June 21.—Problems pertaining to newest methods of purchasing, weighing, handling and accounting for railway fuel supplies were discussed in papers and committee reports at the first annual convention of the International Railway Fuel association which opened today in the Auditorium hotel. The sessions will continue three days, and tomorrow the members will be taken to Gary, Ind., by boat and will be entertained there by the United States Steel Corporation.

The association was organized last fall to promote the interests of the fuel departments of railways by cooperation and interchange of ideas.

FATHER KILLED BY HIS SON.

Michigan Man Claims He Shot to Save Wife and Self.

Tonion Harbor, Mich., June 21.— Emil Tilley, 33 years old, shot and killed his father Ferdinand Tilley on his farm three miles south of this city.
Tilley, Jr., fired three shots, when,
as he alleges, his father attacked his wife, after the old man had partially stunned both with blows from a heavy stick.

"I killed my father in self-defense," said the son. "The lives of both my wife and myself were in jeopardy.
Father had struck me and then turned on my wife. Partially stunning me with a blow on the head he was about to strike a second time when I fired.
He said that lives had been threatened several times by his father."

sence of Senator Joachim Nabuco, Brazilian ambassador to the United

The BLACK BAG

By Louis Joseph Vance

Copyright, 1908, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

As he turned the head of the stairs he looked back. Mrs. Hallam was still at the window, her back turned. From her very passiveness he received an impression of something ominous and forbidding. If she had lost a trick or two of the game she played, she still held cards—was not at the end of her resources. She stuck in his imagination for many an hour as a force to be reckoned with.

For the present he understood that she was waiting to upbraid Calendar and Mulready of their flight. With more haste, then, he followed Dorothy down the three flights, through the tiny office, where madam sat sound asleep at her overburdened desk, and out.

Opposite the door they were fortunate to find a figure drawn up in waiting at the curb. Kirkwood opened the door for the girl to enter.

"Gare du Sud," he directed the driver.
"Drive your fastest. Double fare for quick time!"

The driver, with a start from profound reverie, looked Kirkwood over and bowed with gesticulative pains.

"M'sieu, I am desolated, but engaged," he protested.

"Precisely," Kirkwood deposited the two bags on the forward seat of the conveyance and stood back to converse with the man.

"Precisely," said he, undiminished. "The lady who engaged you is remaining for a time. I will settle her bill."

"Very well, m'sieu!" The driver dis-claimed responsibility and accepted the favor of the gods with a speaking shrug. "M'sieu," said the Gare du Sud?

Kirkwood jumped in and shut the door. The vehicle drew slowly away from the curb, then with gratifying speed hammered upstream on the embankment. Heading forward, elbows on knees, Kirkwood watched the side-walkers narrowly, partly to cover the girl's constraint due to Mrs. Hallam's attitude, partly on the lookout for Calendar and his confederates. In a few moments they passed a public clock.

"We've missed the Rushing boat," he announced. "I'm making a try for the Hook van Holland line. We may possibly make it. I know that it leaves by the Sud quay, and that's all I do know," he concluded, with an apologetic laugh.

"And if we miss that?" asked the girl, breaking silence for the first time since they had left the hotel.

"We'll take the first train out of Antwerp."

"Where to?"

"Wherever the first train goes, Miss Calendar. The main point is to get away tonight. That we must do, no matter where we land or how we get there. Tomorrow we can plan with more certainty."

"Yes," her assent was more a sigh than a word.

The cab, dashing down the Rue Leopold de Wael, swung into the Place du Sud before the station. Kirkwood, acutely watchful, suddenly thrust head and shoulders out of his window (fortunately it was the one away from the depot) and called up to the driver.

"Don't stop! Gare Centrale now—and treble fare!"

"Yes, sir! All right!"

The whip cracked, and the horse swerved sharply round the corner into the Avenue du Sud. The young man

AFTER DOCTORS FAILED

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Her.

Williamette, Conn.—"For five years
I suffered untold agony from female troubles, causing backache, irregularities, dizziness and nervous prostration. It was impossible for me to walk upstairs
without stopping on the way. I tried three different doctors and each told me something different. I received no benefit
from any of them,
but seemed to suffer more. The last
doctor said nothing
would restore
my health. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to see what it would do, and I am restored to my natural health."—Mrs. ETTA DONOVAN, Box 200, Williamette, Conn.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills, and suffering women owe it to themselves to at least give this medicine a trial.
Proof is abundant that it has cured thousands of others, and why should it not cure you?

with a hushed exclamation, "What?" In his seat, lifting the flap over the little people in the back of the carriage.
He had not been mistaken. Calendar was standing in front of the station, and it was plain to be seen from his pose that the madly careering there interested him more than slightly. Irresolute, perturbed, the man took a step or two after it, changed his mind and returned to his post of observation.

Kirkwood dropped the flap and turned back to find the girl's wide eyes searching his face. He said nothing.

"What was that?" she asked after a patient moment.

"Your father, Miss Calendar," he returned uncomfortably.

"There fell a short pause; then, 'Why, will you tell me, is it necessary to run away from my father, Mr. Kirkwood?'" she demanded, with a moving little break in her voice.

CHAPTER XXIV.
Kirkwood hesitated. It was unfeeling to tell her why, yet it was essential that she know, however painful the knowledge might prove to her.

And who was his father? He might not dodge the issue. "Why?" she repeated as he paused.

"I wish you wouldn't press me for an answer just now, Miss Calendar."
"Don't you think I had better know?"
Instinctively he inclined his head in assent.

"Then why?"
Kirkwood bent forward and patted the back of the girl's head, which held the golden hair.

"What does that mean, Mr. Kirkwood?"

"That I have the jewels," he told her terse, looking straight ahead.

At his shoulder he heard a low gasp of amazement and incredulity com-mingled.

"But—how did you get them? My father deposited them in bank this morning!"

"He must have taken them out again. I got them on board the Albion, where your father was con-fering with Mulready and Captain Stryker."

"The Albion?"

"Yes."
"You took them from those men—you? But didn't my father—"

"I had to persuade him," said Kirkwood simply.

"But there were three of them against you?"

"Mulready wasn't—ah—feeling very well, and Stryker's a coward. They gave me no trouble. I locked them in Stryker's room, lifted the bag of jewels and came away. I ought to tell you that they were discussing the advisability of sailing away without you, leaving you here, friendless and without means. That's why I considered it my duty to take a hand. I don't like to tell you this so brutally, but you ought to know."

"I understand."
But for some moments she did not speak. He avoided looking at her.

The sacre, rolling at top speed, but smoothly, on the broad avenues that enlure the ancient city, turned into the Avenue de Keyser, bringing into sight the Gare Centrale.

"You don't know," began the girl without warning, in a voice gusty with sobs.

"Steady on!" said Kirkwood gently.
"I do know, but don't let's talk about it now. We'll be at the station in a minute, and I'll get out and see what's to be done about a train if neither Mulready nor Stryker is about. You stay in the carriage. No!" He changed his mind suddenly. "I'll not risk losing you again. It's a risk we'll have to run in company."

"Please!" she agreed brokenly.
The figure slowed up and stopped.

"Are you all right, Miss Calendar?"
Kirkwood asked.

The girl sat up, lifting her head proudly. "I am quite ready," she said, stiflingly her voice.

Kirkwood reconnoitered through the window while the driver was descending.

"Gare Centrale, m'sieu," he said, opening the door.

"No one in sight," Kirkwood told the girl. "Come, please."

He got out and gave her his hand, then paid the driver, picked up the two bags and hurried with Dorothy into the station to find in waiting a string of cars into which people were moving at leisurely rate. His inquiries at the ticket window developed the fact that it was the 22:20 for Brussels, the last train leaving the Gare Centrale that night and due to start in ten minutes.

The information settled their plans for once and all. Kirkwood promptly secured through the agent, also purchasing "reservoir" supplementary tickets which entitled them to the use of
which entitled them to the use of
which entitled them to the use of

"It's a pleasure," said Kirkwood lightly as he followed the girl into a common sense sort of train again.
Feels like home." He put their baggage in one of the racks and sat down beside her.

The girl smiled bravely. "And after Brussels?" she inquired.

"First train for the coast," he said, promptly. "Dover, Ostend, Boulogne, which ever proves handiest, no matter which, so long as it gets us on English soil without undue delay."

She said "Yes" abstractedly, resting an elbow on the window sill and her chin in her palm, to stare with persistent, sweet brown eyes out into the arc sudden night that hung beneath the echoing roof.

Kirkwood adged in despite of the constraint he placed himself under to be still and not disturb her needlessly.
Impatience and apprehension of misfortune obsessed his mental processes in equal degree. The ten minutes seemed interminable that elapsed ere the grinding couplings advertised the imminence of their start.

The guards began to hawl, the doors to slam, belated travelers to dash madly for the coaches. The train gave a preliminary lurch ere settling down to its leisure long island dash.

Kirkwood, in a fever of hope and an ague of fear, saw a man sprint faciously across the platform and throw himself on the very instant of the start.
Presently he entered by the forward door and walked slowly through, increasingly inspecting the various passengers. As he approached the seats, occupied by Kirkwood and Dorothy Calendar his eyes encountered the young man's, and he leered evilly. Kirkwood met the look with one that was like a lick, and the fellow passed with some haste into the car behind.

"Who was that?" demanded the girl without moving her head.

"How did you know?" he asked, astonished.

"I saw your knuckles whitened beneath the skin. Who was it?"

"Hobbs," he acknowledged bitterly,
"the mate of the Albion."

"I know. And you think—"

"Yes. He must have been ashore when I was on board the brigantine.
He certainly wasn't in the cabin. Evidently they hunted him up or ran across him and pressed him into service. You see they're watching every outlet. But we'll win through, never fear!"

The train, escaping the outskirts of the city, remarked the event with an exultant shudder, then settled down, droning steadily, to night devouring flight. In the corridor near the few passengers disposed themselves to drowse away the coming hour—the short hour's ride that, in these piping days of frantic traveling, separates Antwerp from the capital city of Belgium.

A guard, slumbering guardedly in the front door, rolled unsteadily down the aisle. Kirkwood, rousing from a profound reverie, detained him with a gesture and began to interrogate him in French. When he departed presently it transpired that the girl was unacquainted with that tongue.

"I didn't understand, you know," she told him with a slow, shy smile.

"I was merely questioning him about the train from Brussels tonight. We didn't stop, you see. We must go on—keep Hobbs on the jump and lose him, if possible. There's where our advantage lies—in having only Hobbs to deal with. He's not particularly intellectual, and we've two heads to his one besides. If we can prevent him from guessing our destination and wiring back to Antwerp, we may win away. You understand?"

"Perfectly," she said, brightening.
"And what do you purpose doing now?"

"I can't tell yet. The guard's gone to get me some information about the night trains on other lines. In the meantime don't fret about Hobbs. I'll answer for Hobbs."

UNIVERSITIES ARE FOR SQUARE DEALS

Progress in Economic and Social Legislation—Prof. Turner Gives Baccalaureate Address at State University.

Madison, Wis., June 21.—That the state universities at present are the most promising agents for carrying on the highest and best ideals of the pioneer; that the pioneer love for new regions is being continued by the efforts of the state universities to open new fields of knowledge; and that the state universities are fortifying the pioneer ideals of democracy by making the road to excellence open to the poorest boys of the commonwealth and by furnishing disinterested experts to aid society in adjusting itself to new conditions, was the substance of the baccalaureate address at the University of Wisconsin given by Frederick Jackson Turner of the department of American history on "Pioneer Ideals and the State University."

Square Deal for All
"It is hardly too much to say that the best hope of intelligent and principled progress in economic and social legislation and administration lies in the increasing influence of private universities, both state and private," declared Prof. Turner. "We can not look to them as exponents of social justice, or of the 'square deal,' so dear to the pioneer, where may we look for these things? But that the universities may perform their work, they must be left free, as the pioneers were free, to explore new fields, and to report what they find.

State University for Democracy
"The state university has become more and more the instrument of the democracy of the state, it has led in agricultural investigation, and spread its discoveries among all the farmers; its walls are being widened to enclose the state itself and all of the interests of the state. University extension is reaching down directly to the shop as well as to the farm and there is stimulating an interest and respect for knowledge in general.

"The state university tends to safeguard the democracy. The leaders whom it sends out among the plain people will spread learning. Lord Lincoln's splendid utterances still ring true. 'The learning of the few is despotism; the learning of the many is liberty.' Our modern industrial processes, social relations and problems, are too involved to be dealt with by a common school education directly, the answer must be able to appeal to the expert. Educated leadership furnishes bulwarks against the emotion of the crowd.

Universities Free from Politics
"Now that the university is revealed as something more influential in the life of the state than a mere cloister of scholars, or a boy and girl boarding school, the danger is that the smoke of the battlefield of political and social contest may obscure the free air of the university. Freedom to seek the truth and to disseminate knowledge may be less secure in the future than it has been in the past. Nevertheless the acceptance of the university by the people as an important instrument in promoting prosperity and social uplift shows how potent an agency for social uplift and for justice it may become if left free to perform its work.

Offers All Opportunity to Rise
"The university may also foster that due degree of individualism which is implied in the right of every human being to find opportunity to rise in whatever direction his peculiar abilities entitle him to go, subordinate to the welfare of the state. Like the Catholic church, it may keep the avenues of promotion to the highest offices, the highest honors, open to the humblest and most obscure lad who has the natural gifts, at the same time that it aids in the improvement of the masses, it strikes deep shafts down through the social strata to find the pure ore of genius and it teaches the gospel of service to the state."

Jap's Wonderful Nerve.
A Japanese laborer who was injured by an explosion of dynamite while clearing land on a ranch near Seattle, Wash., exhibited considerable nerve when it was found that the amputation of an arm was necessary. He refused to take an anesthetic and during the operation the Japanese coolly gazed into a looking glass and watched the amputation.

Cistern Water.
Impure and bad smelling cistern water is often caused by the growth within it of microscopic plants called algae. Sulphate of copper will quickly kill these germs, and any other germ. The common name is blue vitrol. Try it in stock tanks, also, which have green scum in them. A piece the size of a grain of wheat will be enough for a barrel of water.

MOST BEAUTIFUL GIRL IN THE NORTHWEST CAPTURED BY CUPID

MISS ROSE HANLY
Menominee, Mich., June 21.—Miss Rose Hanly, reputed to be the most beautiful girl in the northwest, has been captured by the wiles of Cupid and on June 22 will marry Nicholas Myers. The lucky man is well known in railroad circles and during the past two years has been private secretary to S. N. Harrison of Prestige, superintendent of the Wisconsin-Michigan Railroad company.

Miss Hanly is prominent socially and is an accomplished musician. Her photograph has more than once been awarded the first prize in contests for the most beautiful girl in the northwest.

TWO GOOD RULES

FIRST--Make your money honestly.

There never was any happiness obtained by the aid of gains ill-gotten. Every dollar earned of honest toil buys a hundred cents' worth of happiness in every market on earth. A hundred thousand dollars wrongfully possessed, can't buy a cent's worth of heartfelt pleasure anywhere.

SECOND--Spend your money carefully.

While you are earning it by making something which you probably don't want, somebody else is equally busy making something you DO want. Don't be worsted in the trade. Until you find the best place to spend it, hold the dollar so tightly that the eagle screams and the Goddess of Liberty expostulates.
